RE: Estate of Adriana Hall

Dear Mr. Peel:

At your request, I have calculated the net cash value of the life of Adriana Hall ("Hall") in connection with the wrongful death lawsuit resulting from her death on April 14, 2016. In a calculation of this type, a primary objective is to arrive at the present value of the stream of income, net of personal consumption/maintenance expenditures, that Hall could have generated in the absence of her death. According to my calculations, this economic loss is in the range $608,478.63 to $1,104,839.76. Below, I will discuss my computations in detail and total loss is summarized in the attached tables.

Net Cash Value of Life

Had she remained alive, Hall could have been expected to generate income flows over her productive work life. In assigning a value to these income flows, a distinction should be made between past and projected future magnitudes. Past earnings are not discounted; however future earnings should be discounted and converted into present value terms. Past earnings are not calculated in the present instance. The present value of projected future earnings, which is equivalent to earning capacity, is calculated for two scenarios based on alternative levels of educational attainment. Scenario (1) is based on the average earnings of females with some college. Scenario (2) is based on the average earnings of female college graduates. I have considered an additional scenario, Scenario (3), based on the average earnings across all occupations in the United States based on the United States Department of Labor publication:

Occupational Employment Statistics, May 2016. This scenario is based on the guideline established by Mississippi Supreme Court in Greyhound v. Sutton, 765 Sd 1269, 1277. The present value of future income for these scenarios is calculated by projecting base income over work life expectancy in accordance with the equation below:

$$\text{Value of Future Income} = \sum_{t=1}^T (\text{Base Income})(1 - \text{Personal Consumption Percentage}) / (1 + r)^t$$

where T = work life expectancy, which is alternatively assumed to be 32.56 or 44.00 additional years at age 23 for Scenario (1); 33.99 or 43.00 additional years at age 24 for Scenario (2); or 32.56 or 44.00 additional years at age 23 for Scenario (3). The lower end of these ranges is based on statistical work life expectancies based on Gary R. Skoog, James E. Ciecka, and Kurt V. Krueger: "The Markov Process Model of Labor Force Activity: Extended Tables of Central Tendency, Shape, Percentile Points, and Bootstrap Standard Errors", Journal of Forensic Economics, 22 (2), 2011, attached as Exhibit (1). The upper end of the ranges is based on an assumed retirement at age 67.

Base Income (Scenario 1) = $0.00 for year 1 (age 22); $24,046.00 per year for years 2-3 (ages 23-24); $35,969.00 per year for years 4-13 (ages 25-34); $44,077.00 per year for years 14-23 (ages 35-44); $48,201.00 per year for years 24-33 (ages 45-54); $52,944.00 per year for years 34-43 (ages 55-64); and $53,272.00 per year thereafter, based on the United States Census Bureau publication: Current Population Survey, 2016 Annual Social and Economic Supplement, table PINC-04, attached as Exhibit (2).

Base Income (Scenario 2) = $0.00 for years 1-2 (ages 22-23); $36,482.00 per year for year 3 (age 24); $53,081.00 per year for years 4-13 (ages 25-34); $68,348.00 per year for years 14-23 (ages 35-44); $70,957.00 per year for years 24-33 (ages 45-54); $73,971.00 per year for years 34-43 (ages 55-64); and $60,901.00 per year thereafter, based on the United States Census Bureau publication: Current Population Survey, 2016 Annual Social and Economic Supplement, table PINC-04, attached as Exhibit (2).

Base Income (Scenario 3) = $0.00 for year 1 (age 22) and $49,630.00 per year thereafter, based on the above-cited United States Bureau of Labor Statistics publication, attached as Exhibit (3).

Personal Consumption/Maintenance Percentage = 30.0% based on the guideline established in Greyhound v. Sutton, cited above. This percentage is approximately equal to the average consumption percentage of single females, married females, and married females with two children across the scenarios identified above.

r = discount factor used to convert future magnitudes into present value terms. For computational purposes I have assumed r to be equal to 2.5% to reflect the real rate of return (interest minus inflation) on inflation indexed government bonds. These bonds would be a financial instrument almost perfectly suited to protecting against the effects of future inflation.

Performing the calculation indicated by equation (2), based on the assumptions above, yields a projected future value of projected income in the range $608,478.64 to $1,104,839.76. My computations are presented on a year-by-year basis in the attached Tables (1) – (3), which are based on Scenarios (1) - (3), respectively.

My curriculum vitae, case list, and fee schedule are attached as Exhibits (4), (5), and (6), respectively.

My computations of economic loss are summarized in the attached Table (4). If you have any questions or if I can be of further assistance in this matter, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Yours very truly,

Footnotes:

(1) Estimates for detailed occupations do not sum to the totals because the totals include occupations not shown separately. Estimates do not include self-employed workers.
(2) Annual wages have been calculated by multiplying the hourly mean wage by 2,080 hours.
(3) The relative standard error (RSE) is a measure of the reliability of a survey statistic. The smaller the relative standard error, the more precise the estimate.

The Markov Process Model of Labor Force Activity: Extended Tables of Central Tendency, Shape, Percentile Points, and Bootstrap Standard Errors

Gary R. Skoog, James E. Cieccka and Kurt V. Krueger*

Abstract

This paper updates the Skoog-Cieccka (2001) worklife tables, which used 1997-1998 data, and the Krueger (2005) worklife tables, which used 1998-2004 data. The present paper uses data generated by the methodology Krueger devised in his 2003 PhD dissertation. We have pooled the data beginning January 2005 and continuing through December 2009, a period of five years, using observations matched a year apart. Thus, we have roughly four times the data in the first of the previous studies, and about that of the second. We chose this period for a variety of reasons, including recency, business cycle and trend considerations. The result is the most current and disaggregated set of worklife tables, along with extended probability calculations and statistical measures available to forensic economists.

I. Introduction

Worklife expectancy within the Markov model remains the current paradigm employed by forensic economists to calculate time in and out of the labor force resulting from mortality and transitions into and out of activity. Its use is commonly dated to Smith (1982) and the Bureau of Labor Statistics Bulletin 2135, which announced the change from the conventional model; but the model goes back much earlier. Two living states, active and inactive, are employed and continue to be used in the worklife tables that are in most common use.

This paper updates the Skoog-Cieccka (2001a and 2001b) worklife tables, which used 1997-1998 data, and the Krueger (2004) worklife tables, which used 1998-2004 data. The present paper estimates probability mass functions introduced by Skoog and Cieccka (2001a and 2002) with data generated by the methodology in Krueger (2003). We have pooled the data beginning January 2005 and continuing through December 2009, a period of five years, using observations matched one year apart. Thus, we have roughly four times the data

EDUCATION

Ph.D., Tulane University School of Economics, New Orleans, Louisiana
(1983)

B.A., Hendrix College, Conway, Arkansas (1973)
Major in Economics and Business

ECONOMIC BACKGROUND

Primary Area of Interest: Macroeconomics, Monetary Theory

Field Examinations: Taken and passed in Microeconomics,
Macroeconomics, Mathematical Economics, Statistics, International
Economics, Monetary Theory and Econometrics

Dissertation Title: Rational Expectations, Aggregate Supply and Fiscal Policy

In my dissertation, I integrated fiscal parameters into the Lucas-Rapping theory of labor supply to obtain a theory of aggregate supply in which the effectiveness of fiscal policy could be analyzed. In addition I developed and estimated an empirical model for the aggregate economy incorporating developments in expectational theory into supply and demand side relationships to analyze the effectiveness of fiscal policy within a broader context.

TEACHING EXPERIENCE

Professor of Economics (tenured), Hendrix College, Conway, Arkansas
1979 to present

Instructor, Tulane University, New Orleans, Louisiana, Summer 1978-
Spring 1979

Instructor, St. Mary's Dominican College, New Orleans, Louisiana, Fall
1977-Summer 1978

Current Teaching Responsibilities: I teach several sections of introductory level Microeconomics and Macroeconomics as well as upper level theory courses in Microeconomics, Macroeconomics, Money Banking and Credit and International Economics. I have also taught courses and directed independent study projects in Mathematical Economics, Finance, Monetary Theory, and Investment Analysis.

CONSULTING EXPERIENCE

Consultation in economic and financial matters is conducted through the Economic and Financial Consulting Group, Inc., of which I am a principal. Over the past 20 years, I have developed extensive experience in personal injury and wrongful death lawsuits. I have been called on by defense as well as plaintiff attorneys in this regard and have been qualified as an expert witness in Federal, State and Local Courts in Arkansas and adjacent states.

Additional consulting expertise entails business and franchise evaluations. My qualifications also extend to statistical and econometric analysis, as well as financial analysis.

List of deposition and courtroom testimony, client list and professional references available upon request.

SEMINARS AND PUBLICATIONS

Evaluation of Damages in Personal Injury Lawsuits, presented in conjunction with the Professional Education Systems, Inc.'s seminar and subsequent publication: How to Evaluate and Settle Personal Injury Claims in Arkansas, November 1989.

The Role of the Economist in Personal Injury Lawsuits, seminar presented to the Pulaski County Bar Association, Little Rock, Arkansas, October 1989.

Presentation to CLE seminar on recent developments in the evaluation of economic loss in personal injury lawsuits. Little Rock, Arkansas, April 1999.
